People connecting through an outside experience

Community is made simply by the experience, not a requirement to share personal information

It is the individual's response that decides if the person is a stranger or public believer in a situation.

A 3D-rendered puzzle with white pieces and a red textured center. The puzzle is composed of several interlocking pieces, with a central piece missing, revealing a red, textured surface underneath. The pieces are arranged in a roughly rectangular shape, with some pieces missing from the top and bottom edges. The red surface has a fine, woven texture, resembling fabric or a carpet.
